Man is by birth a debtor. Notwithstanding that his immortal soul is the forfeit, he performs his duties reluctantly and frequently omits them entirely. Unrestrained, man is prone to error. He revels in human freedom; unmindful that true freedom consists in knowing, seeking, and finding the Truth. In the language of the Holy Gospel, Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free. The discipline of the Catholic Church is capable of keeping man in bounds. She alone keeps the Gospel lamp burning. The Church holds daily worship. The solemn sounds of her bells are heard morning, noon, and afternoon. The Church is God's messenger to man. Therefore, she is, indeed, venerable. Outside of the Catholic Church there is not any veneration; there is not any regard for the sacred and the holy. The Church sanctifies everything connected with Divine worship. Even her bells, which summon the faithful to prayer, she sanctifies. In the Catholic Church concord and unity abound; there are no sects, no schisms, no strife, no contentions! Thus, the Church demonstrates that she is of God. Protestantism beguiles, it lures its adherents. It encourages them in the vain belief that salvation is the natural right of men and women--that meritorious deeds are not required of them. Thus Protestantism attempts to contradict St. PAUL, who declares that man must work out his salvation in fear and trembling. The disregard of Protestantism for good works is synonymous...
