LORD STANLEY, M. P. , and c. My Lord, --As one who, though little able to promote their welfare, feels a deep interest in the working people of this country, I heard your Lordships very able speech on the motion for promoting Sunday exhibitions with extreme concern. When a youthful statesman inherits, as your Lordship does, name and talent which assure to him an important influence in the State, even obscure individuals like myself have a personal interest in such of his opinions as bear upon morals and civil rights. I, therefore, with much deference, crave your Lordships attention to a few considerations, which may, at least, raise a doubt whether the views advanced by your Lordship, on the occasion referred to, do not hurtfully bear upon both. Nothing can be farther from my thoughts than...
